

Maths development

Having fun with maths in a practical manner will not only engage more children in this important area of learning but, also support staff who may be lacking in their own confidence for maths.

- Make maths fun! Dispose of your “maths” area and integrate maths throughout the whole setting, indoors and out
- Provide natural resources and open-ended materials for children to use in their exploration
- Provide measuring tools (such as scales and measuring tapes) to extend their learning and development, this supports children to practice their mathematical skills in a practical arena.
