Overview:

A game similar to musical chairs to get children moving and talking about fruit, colours, numbers and textures.

Resources:

- Fruit
- Fruit photographs (see additional)
- Different colour baskets (same colour and number as fruits where possible).

Instructions:

- Children to sit in a circle or group and introduced to the topic of fruit. Practitioner to have two bowls, one filled with a variety of fruit (aim for as many different colours, sizes and textures as possible for a discussion point) and the other with photographs or other imitation of fruit (wooden fruit etc.). It is essential that there are at least two of every fruit in the second bowl.
- Practitioner should show the children a real fruit and ask open ended questions where possible.
- Pass the fruit around the circle and encourage discussion where possible. Continue until all the fruit has been passed around the circle and each child has had an opportunity to take part in a discussion.
- Each child to be given an imitation of fruit from the second bowl (photographs, wooden fruit etc.).
- The practitioner will call the name of the fruit. Children holding that fruit will swap places. Continue until all children have swapped places.
- When everyone has swapped places the practitioner will ask the children to find and retrieve something in the room that is the same colour of the particular fruit.
- The items that have been retrieved should be placed in the basket. Practitioner to take this opportunity to reinforce colours and names of items.
- Sing Un, dau, tri Banana to finish.

Note:

When you're describing things in Welsh – saying how big, small or rough something is – sometimes the letters at the beginning of the words change (mutate).

So, if you wanted to say: 'It's big' in Welsh, you say: 'Mae'nfawr (instead of mawr)
